

The Independent Day School Faculty Scholars Program

The Independent Day School, educating youngsters age three through grade 8, was conceived and founded in 1961 by educators from Wesleyan University and Choate Rosemary Hall in Partnership with families from surrounding communities. Their intent was to build a school that could offer excellent teaching and learning and engage the potential of curious, eager, and joyful students.

On the occasion of its 50th Anniversary year, IDS has initiated a special scholarship program to honor these historic relationships among three extraordinary communities. The IDS Faculty Scholars Program intends to make attending IDS more affordable for a limited number of Wesleyan and Choate faculty and staff families.

Eligibility:

Families of children applying for admission to grades 5, 6, and 7 at IDS whose parent(s) work full-time at either Choate or Wesleyan are eligible to apply for a Faculty Scholars award.

Amount of Scholarship:

Families whose child/ren receive a Faculty Scholars award will receive a 50% aid award and may also apply for additional aid through our conventional financial aid process. Admission to IDS is competitive. The application process for the Faculty Scholars award is also a competitive application process. The Faculty Scholars Program entails an abbreviated financial aid application; information about applicant family's income, expenses, assets and liabilities will be required and evaluated.
